The Garland

North Hollywood

Concept: It was once Gene Autry's horse ranch. Then it became a hotel. Now the same family just remodeled it to look super 70's. Jackie Treehorn would be proud. It's pimp.

To Sleep: Mid century furniture and mesa-modern patterns on the carpets and walls give it the retro funk. But the beds have the 500-thread sheets needed for a serious slumber.

To Eat and Drink: The Garland's restaurant, The Front Yard, is worth visiting the hotel for, alone. Its food is served at the lobby bar and to the tables in its courtyard.

To Do: To keep the California energy, they made the lobby spill out into the courtyard, where the pool also is located. Yoga on the weekends, and tours to the Brady Bunch home.
